Early harvest really is a mixed blessing, say experts

HIGH RATE HARVEST
Harvest is brought in at Westway Seed Farms just east of Didsbury.

By Ceilidh McClurg

No need to keep looking at the calendar in bewilderment. Yes it was August, and yes, the crops were being harvested almost a month earlier than traditionally done so.

"Harvest has been in full swing for about four weeks. It's really not your normal year," says Sandra Eppich of Alberta Agriculture in Olds. She was out in the field last Tuesday checking the progress of the harvest.

But, as any farmer will tell you, just because it was an early harvest doesn't mean it has been the picture perfect year by any means. Yields are about average across this region with crops like barley, which is the most commonly grown crop in the area, ranging between 40 and 50 bushels per acre for some of the better yields. Average yields, with average to below normal quality equals average dollar return in the area. Barley weights ranging from 39 pounds to about 52 pounds per bushel for the very high quality product.

"There has been quite a bit of variation not only in yield but in quality," says Eppich. She explains that the range of quality has varied immensely over the region.

At first glance it might look like the weather this year fit together like a puzzle with a spring dry enough for farmers to get their crops in quite a bit earlier.

"This area usually has quite a short growing season," says Eppich. Mother Nature blessed the farmers with a longer growing season, but that in itself presented its own problems.

However, it was that very early spring that caused the low yields. Without enough rain to get the crops going right away, some fields came up patchy.

"There are some advantages to being able to get the crop off quickly, but crops didn't always have the right combination of rain and heat so the quality of the yield will vary," she said.

She estimated that as of Tuesday, about 60% of barley had been swathed and about 80% of canola, another major crop in the area, had been cut.

Canola, which is a few weeks behind other crops, but still ahead of schedule, is starting to come off the fields this week.

Another problem that has contributed to some of the poor conditions is that not only do we humans like warm dry weather, but so do the bugs.

Murray Hartman, a cereals and oilseeds specialist from Alberta Agriculture says that Lygus bugs were an issue this year, but because of an aggressive spraying campaign they were kept in control. Other bugs that caused somewhat of a problem were grasshoppers.

But, there was one problem that was helped by the warm dry weather instead of aggravated.

"The weeds have been less of a problem this year because of the dryness," said Hartman.

But the overall picture isn't a bad one. There were showers, there was warm weather, and there was a longer growing season.

Because of all of this, some farmers are seeing problems not always encountered in this area. Some higher yielding crops are lodging, or bending over, which makes the harvest harder to get off, but is a sign of a good crop.

The threat of frost becomes almost redundant when most of the crops in the area are well on their way to being ready for the market, explains Eppich.

What all of this means is that the farmers in the area will be able to enjoy a more relaxing fall having already pulled almost everything out of the field. But with forecasts for a very cold and long winter, some new problems could crop up next year.

Funding announcement won't affect Didsbury

By Ceilidh McClurg

The bad news is that the latest announcement of a boost in transportation infrastructure funds won't affect Didsbury.

The good news is that the reason we won't be affected is because we already got our share approved last year.

The province announced last week that they would be putting about $150 million into transportation funding over the next three years to mostly the major municipalities, but with some money kept for the backlog of small rural municipal infrastructure programs.

However, Wes Yeoman, town engineer, reports that when Didsbury applied earlier this year for funding to upgrade some local roads, they were given more than $430,000 which is funding many of the projects that Didsburians can see going on right now on local streets.

"All the work we are doing this year is under this program," says Yeoman. He explains that the funding is being dispersed over a three year period.

"We've already received what I believe is coming to us," says Yeoman. He adds that the cash injection will likely go to rural municipalities who were either turned down in the last round of funding, or were only given partial funding. Neither of which is the case of the Town of Didsbury.

Yeoman is quick to add that this doesn't mean that he wouldn't consider asking for more funding under the announcement, but doesn't believe it is likely that Didsbury would be entitled to any of it.

County to support Sunpine Decision ... and other county council notes

By Nicole Smith

Sunpine support

The County Council will back Sunpine Forest Products Ltd. in fighting a court decision that has halted bridge construction in the area, including the building of Lone Pine Creek Bridge.

A presentation was made to council by Greg Neale, Woodlands Manager for Sunpine Forest Products Ltd. A federal court has ruled that permits issued to Sunpine at the federal and provincial levels are invalid. The permits were for bridges built across the Ram River and Prairie Creek, near Rocky Mountain House, in order to allow logging access. The courts said that procedure wasn't followed in obtaining these permits.

Because of this court decision, Sunpine now has no way of getting wood out of the area, without using the bridges. Neale says the harvesting will be okay this season, but if this decision isn't resolved, there will be no way to harvest wood next season.

The council has decided to support Sunpine in their appeal process. The Sunpine Decision has resulted in a temporary halt to bridge approvals by the federal government, which affects the Lone Pine Creek Bridge project (WNW 7-31-26-W4) in Division 3.

"We're going to support trying to get this thing sorted out," said County Reeve Pat James. "We're all pretty concerned. We hope to get some normalcy into this thing."

Senior housing resolution

Council is unanimously supporting a resolution on maintaining the Senior Citizen Lodge Program the way it is.

It is possible that the Long Term Care Review Committee may be suggesting to move the Lodge Program under the Health Portfolio to help alleviate the shortage of long term care beds across Alberta.

Council believes that the lodges must remain a housing option and not be considered an institutional health care option for seniors.

Taxes forgiven

A motion was carried last Wednesday to exempt the Foot-hills Curling Association of $428.27 in property taxes.

Councillor Linda Burrell spoke about supporting the group because "they are a community group and one of the last ones left."

Advanced poll

An advanced poll for the Senatorial Election will be held in conjunction with the municipal elections this fall. This advanced poll is to take place at the County Office.

The County will not be holding an advance poll for the municipal elections though. They say there is usually a poor turnout and it's not worth the effort to set up in advance.

Getting the grant

Council has been informed by Alberta Municipal Affairs that they will be eligible for $49,000 under the Municipal 2000 Sponsorship Program. This grant will be put toward implementing a Geographical Information System. Council said the $49,000 should cover the project need, therefore, council will not need to inject more funding. This was accepted as information only.

Gravel increase

Each division of Mountain View County has been granted an extra 1,000 yards of gravel.

Hearings rescheduled

The Public Hearings that were scheduled for Nov. 18, have been moved to Nov. 23 due to a conflict with the AAMD&C Fall Convention.

RCMP notes

Shooting incident in Sundre

Sundre RCMP responded to a call early Saturday morning to find that an altercation had ended in someone being shot with a high powered rifle.

The incident occurred at a residence in the vicinity of Main Ave. west in Sundre. Police report that a number of people were involved in an altercation that lead to the crime.

The victim, 33 year old Peter Hildebrandt, was shot in the arm and was transported to the Calgary Foothills Hospital where is listed in stable condition.

Two men were in custody over the weekend.

Charged with Attempted murder, aggravated assault, assault using a weapon, use of firearm while committing an indictable offence, use of a firearm in a careless manner, and possession of a weapon for the purpose dangerous to the public peace, is Manuel Edgar Vanance, 43.

Vanance appeared in Didsbury court Monday. He reserved his plea and the case was adjourned until Sept. 23. Vanance was released by the court with conditions such as good behavior, no weapons, and no contact with the victim. He must also make weekly reports to the police.

Dry harvest causing fire hazard

Three fires in less than 24 hours

By Ceilidh McClurg

Dry heat and hard working machinery have contributed to a number of farm fires in the past week.

In just over 24 hours, there were at least three fires in farmer's fields in the Didsbury and Olds area.

The first was fire that is believed to have started behind a combine was on Wayne and Shannon Kohuts land south-east of Didsbury. It spread so quickly because the dry straw that surrounded the area fuelled the flames with fury.

But it wasn't just straw that burnt. Wayne Kohut figures he also lost about 10 acres of swathed grain.

Many neighboring farmers came to the aid of the Kohuts when they saw the smoke funnel that stretched into the sky. The neighbors helped out the Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department by using their tractors to turn the dirt and smother the flames. One neighbor even ran around the proximity of the fire moving some of the swathed grain out of the way by hand, trying to save it from the quick burn.

Kohut says it won't hurt his operation too much though, because the amount lost would only equate to about one truck load of grain, maybe a little more.

The Kohuts weren't alone in their battle against the blazes.

Only a couple of hours later, a grain truck that was working in a farm field just south of Didsbury started on fire. Luckily the fire and the damage to the surrounding crop was quickly contained.

The next morning, the Olds Fire Department and the Didsbury Department responded to a call just on the east side of Highway 2 near Olds.

A truck was completely destroyed in that blaze and a few acres of land were burnt up.

No one was injured in any of these fires, and Peggy Good of Mountain View Partners For Farm Health and Safety says that is a lucky thing.

They say that they are not surprised that these types of fires occur at this time of year, especially with such a dry summer.

Good says other hazards of fires during harvest are equipment that overheats or has problems such as exhaust leaks. It also depends on what is in the field. She says the most flammable materials are dry straw, grain dust and chaff.

However, they do offer a few tips that could aid in the prevention of such fires.

Bill Avison, also from the Partners, says, "Unless it was a lightning strike, the fire that started on your place... could likely have been prevented."

They both suggest these tips:

- make sure that needed repairs are made to harvest equipment before the work begins.

- make sure that everyone involved in the harvest has had some training in safety procedures.

- make sure that all equipment has a fully charged fire extinguisher on board, because an early reaction can prevent the fire from getting larger and ruining more land.

- make sure that all equipment is kept clean and free of chaff, dust, fuel, oil, and grease build up.

Even when following all these tips, sometimes fires just happen. So what you do when they do just happen, can make a difference between making it worse and saving yourself and your valuable crop.

Good suggests staying calm and in control and assessing the scene. If no one is in danger, go to the nearest phone and call 911 if it is available in your area, or call the fire department directly if it is not.

It is also suggested that next to all farm phones there be a list of directions to give the emergency response teams, your legal land description, any identifiable markers near the fire, and knowledge of any access to a dugout for water purposes.

TEAM TACKLE

The Kohut family lost about a truckload of grain and a lot of straw in this fire last Tuesday.

BAD LUCK TRUCK

This grain truck saw its last day of work on the farm last Wednesday when it burnt up on a farm east of Olds.

Bueckert first to announce candidacy

By Ceilidh McClurg

A local man has announced his candidacy for the town council. Gord Bueckert is the first official candidate to announce that he will run in the fall municipal elections.

Bueckert says that his reasons for running are varied, but the most important being that he believes that Didsbury is a good town, with good values, and he wants to protect that for the residents and his own family.

Bueckert has lived in Didsbury for about three years with his wife and three children who range in age from 10 to 12.

It is the youth in his own family that has made him concerned about the young people in this community.

"I have couple of ideas (how to find resolution to the youth problem)," says Bueckert. "If the people and the businesses aren't willing to do something, then the town will have to pull together some resources to figure something out."

Bueckert believes that his biggest attribute that he has to offer is that he is a regular guy, who really cares about the community and the issues in town. Bueckert is a general contractor whose present major project is the Main Street Project. He mulled over the idea of running for council by speaking to his family and current town councillors to get a feel of what it would be like, and he was convinced he could make a difference.

He also says that part of his platform will be to continue economic growth within the town, while keeping the lure of the small town life and family values.

"The people of this town should be proud of our town and I am going to do everything in my power to keep it that way," he says with conviction.

If you plan to run for town council, county council, or the Chinook's Edge School board, the Review is interested. Please call the office at 335-3301.

New superintendent brings immediate message

By Ceilidh McClurg

As the kids in Chinook's Edge pile back to school, so will the new superintendent at the board, Herb Fader.

Fader made his first address to the board last week at their meeting, and he talked about being in the schools, getting to know the concerns of the schools.

"If you don't rub shoulders with people, concerns build," Fader told the board.

He also jumped head first into an issue that the school board has been long accused of having problems with - communication. In fact, that was the first item he put on the agenda in his new role.

He spoke about communication on many different levels, but most importantly the relationship between central office and the schools, and the public.

He plans what he calls "brown bag lunches," where he will go into the schools and sit with the staff in the staff room to discuss issues that are affecting them. He also plans to talk to staff about keeping communication lines with the public open and clear.

"It is extremely important that if we are going to serve children that we must communicate with staff, management, parents, and students," he told the board.

"I want to give honest feedback on how we are going to improve communication. The communication theme is something that I am going to be pushing all year."

Fader also addressed another issue that the board has struggled with over the course of the past year and a half and that is the relationship between the board members. He says that he acknowledges that two county boards had to be brought together, unwillingly, to create Chinook's Edge, but he talked of moving beyond that point and encouraged the board to "think regionally."

He said, "We need to make sure that we think as one board."

Fader took the position of superintendent late in the school year. He has put an end to the transitional time when the former superintendent left, and the interim superintendent, Jim Gibbons took over temporarily. Gibbons will now be acting in his role as Deputy Superintendent.

He concluded his discussion with the board by stating, "If we all do our part, I think we can all serve the children in

EDITORIAL / OPINIONS

The new 'F' word --- FOIP

McCLURG

You've been FOIPed!
How ridiculous does that sound? Well, it surely can't be as ridiculous as the law itself.

The Freedom Of Information and Protection Of Privacy Act went into effect Sept. 1 and at the outset looks like a great law. Who wouldn't want their privacy protected? Who wouldn't want to be able to access public information when it is needed?

It had all the potential of a baby bird about to take flight. It ended up a great big goose egg by my standards.

The idea was that FOIP, which is now a governing act for all public bodies (ie. school board), would serve as a sort of big brother to all the children. For example, it prevents the schools from divulging information to the public, such as school marks, that might negatively affect the student. This is fair, in fact, this is a very wise move.

However, FOIP to a small town reporter like me is a set of handcuffs. What FOIP says is that if I am going to take any picture, of any kids, then I must have a signed permission slip. Sounds like just a little bit of red tape right? Wrong!

As a small town newspaper, the schools, the kids, and all of the activities involving the two are one of the lifelines of what fills this paper each week. I know this because in the summer when school is out, it is difficult for me to find a good feature photo. The schools want us to be there, the parents get upset if we aren't, and the kids love to see their picture in the newspaper.

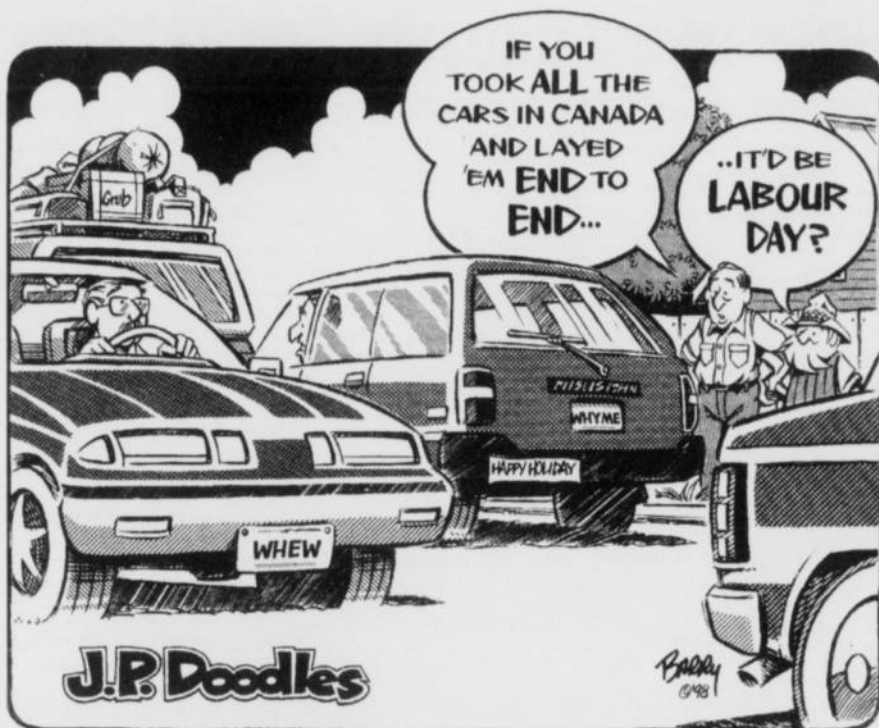

Let me provide an example. I hear that there is a team of local athletes that is going to the basketball championships. I want to come get a picture of the team playing. Let's say that Jane Doe goes in for a slam dunk, and I take a picture that I plan to run in the newspaper. A few days ago, I would have run this picture. But, starting this week I would not only have to have signed permission forms from Jane's parents, I would also have to have signed permission slips from the players that are in the background of the picture, even if it was a team from Calgary. Can you even begin to imagine the nightmare of trying to get a hold of all of those parents, having them sign a permission slip, and filing them for future reference. At that is at its best. What if I took a whole roll of pictures, then I would have to do the same for each picture that I took because I don't know which one is going to make it into the paper.

But, if I am to follow the letter of the law, and protect the school and school board's butts, I would have to do it. Sounds like a two day job, for one picture, doesn't it? Well, since I don't have that kind of spare time I can take the easy route and not print any pictures. But that wouldn't actually be any easier because I would probably spend the next two days taking calls from angry parents and coaches who felt that the newspaper was ignoring something important. I would simply have to agree with all of those angry people, and then I would have to show them a copy of FOIP to make them understand.

And, the worst part is that blanket permission slips sent out at the beginning of the year don't cut it, according to FOIP. Quote, "How can a parent approve a picture that hasn't even been taken yet, or they haven't even seen yet?"

This is just one example, imagine all the 'ifs' that this FOIP could present. And, let me tell you, trying to get an answer from the bureaucrats that had nothing better to do that day except create FOIP, on those 'ifs' is like running in a tight circle with my head between my legs. No one, not even the lawyers who were expensively hired to help people understand this law understand how it will affect you, they will admit that themselves. Bottom line- this law was not well thought out, the basis was a good one, but the end result was horrific. And most importantly, they seem to be forgetting that the first three words in the name of this law are "Freedom of Information."

So parents, teachers, coaches and any other public bodies whose events I don't cover, please forgive me and understand that the bureaucrats are freezing my camera.

Notes from Nigeria: Differences

Dan and Janet Snyder are Didsburians who are missionaries in Nigeria. They are working at a school in Jos, Nigeria for the Evangelical Missionary Church of Canada, and Dan is teaching math and English, while Janet runs the library for the whole school. Both have been in the country periodically doing the mission work since the late 70's. The couple met while working in Nigeria and married in December 1995. Their latest excursion set out on May 15 this year and they will return to Didsbury in May of 2000 for a three month furlough. They will return to Nigeria and will remain there until 2006. The Snyders send weekly letters to their family telling about their day to day experiences, and we at the Review believe it will be of interest to our readers.

Greetings from Jos. We have had a lot of rain this week. Several days there has been more than two inches. Students in the elementary classes are dismissed at 3 p.m., so wouldn't you know that it starts raining at 2:55 p.m. We have sheet metal roofs here so it can be fairly noisy when it rains. Janet had trouble making herself heard teaching sixth grade library skills.

We chaperoned an eighth grade party last night and all but one student came. The activities planned were for outside but the lights on the court didn't work and then it rained. We had a few indoor activities but some of them were too 'undignified' for eighth graders. They wanted to dance, but school policy says that they may not dance at class parties. There were some uncomfortable minutes, but eventually we interested them in some gymnastic-type activities and the party ended well. Next time ...

Thursday night we went out to a Lebanese restaurant with two hostel parents, Janet and Bob Ellison. The meal was very good and the fellowship was great. We got talking about furlough experiences and laughed long and loud. I was almost rolling on the floor when Bob told us about the couple from their home church who advocated going shopping at one o'clock in the morning so that they could get roasted chickens at half price. Bob was all for sleeping. We explained that we scrounged through the trash can at the post office to get several coupon books for Safeway. Life in Nigeria is so different that looking back on experiences like these makes them seem very funny. Even though Jos has a population of about 400,000 there are no all-night stores that we know of. Anyway, no one in their right mind would be out after midnight unless it was an emergency.

The water is flowing from the city again. Maybe the water board and the electricity suppliers made peace. It's nice to be able to wash clothes without feeling that we need to collect rain water. Petrol is still not available from the stations without waiting in very long lines, but Hillcrest has its own supply so we aren't bothered. Just the other day I was contemplating that our life here is very good. God has given us health and supplies all of our needs. Truly we are very fortunate. Sure we watch for snakes and other creepy crawlies. One of our student's father came in contact with a caterpillar-like creature last week and almost died of an allergic reaction. The environment here is not as friendly as back home so it's wise to be alert.

Bob Ellison told us about his experiences with NEPA (Nigerian Electric Power Authority - our electric company). It was quite comical so I just have to share it. The postal system here is less than efficient so NEPA delivers their bills door to door. The bills are produced and processed in the neighbouring state so are often quite late. This past week the NEPA man brought the April bill to the hostel and told Bob that since their payment was overdue they needed to pay it immediately or their electricity would be cut off. Of course, Bob had sent one of his workers down to the NEPA office several times before trying to find out what they owed so they could pay their bill, but since the bills come from another state the NEPA office here didn't know what was owed so the bill could not be paid. Bob sent Michael down the next morning with the money to pay the bill. Two hours later Michael returned to the hostel with the money and the unpaid bill. After almost two hours of being made to wait at the NEPA office, Michael was finally told that NEPA did not have electricity and therefore could not print receipts so would not take the money. What a country. We just have to laugh sometimes or else we would get so frustrated we would give ourselves ulcers.

Please pray for Janet Nickel who is not feeling well. It is not much fun being sick here. She was so sick on Friday night that she couldn't get out of bed without being nauseated. When you live by yourself and don't have telephone, how do you get someone to come help you. It wasn't until Saturday morning that she was able to get someone to get the nurse.

FROM THE MAILBAG

Ponderings of the heart

By Margaret Fradley

It seems in this day and age we are constantly "on the move" - from province to province, city to city and community to community.

There is a story of a man who also had plans to relocate. As he drove into a small town, he drove up to a service station to gas up. He asked the attendant "What are the people like in this town?" To which the man asked "How did you find them in the last town?" The traveller answered, "I found them quite unapproachable and unfriendly." The other remarked, "You'll find them the same way here."

Later in the day another customer also asked the service man, "How do you find the people in this town?" Again the reply came, "How did you find them in the last town?" "Oh, they were great, friendly and very helpful." "Well," responded the man, "you'll find them the same here."

When facing a decision to move to Didsbury some 28 years ago, I asked a number of friends whose opinions I respected, what they felt about such a move. There were pros and cons.

However, I will never forget the best advice given to me by a good friend.

"Don't forget Margaret, when you move you have to take yourself with you."

Hepatitis C decision disgraceful

To the Honourable Allan Rock, Minister of Health

At the Premiers' Conference earlier in the month, Canada's Premiers were united in wanting a resolution to the issue of compensating Hepatitis C victims infected through the blood system prior to 1986.

In taking this position, the Premiers were moved by a poll sponsored by victims' groups which clearly illustrates overwhelming support for extending compensation to pre-1986 victims. The poll also strongly indicates that Canadians feel the Federal government has the greatest responsibility to provide compensation. I have enclosed a summary of these results for your interest and re-

On several occasions I have written to you requesting that the position of the Federal government on compensation for pre-86 victims be made known so that other provincial government would have the information they need to make a decision. While time ticks away for victims, your government has remained silent. The Working Group established to examine the issue cannot proceed further without political direction. Last May, you said this Working Group would conclude its work in four weeks, yet four months has passed without any resolution.

In order for the issue of compensation to be resolved by mid-

September, as requested by Canada's premiers, the federal position on compensation for pre-86 victims must be articulated to victims groups and provincial governments immediately. I would hope that you would use the opportunity of your Caucus meeting on Aug. 18 to finalize and publicize your position. This will ensure that the Federal/Provincial/Territorial meeting of Health Ministers in the middle of September will be productive in bringing closure to this critical issue.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Witmer, MPP
Minister

Seniors welcome death of Seniors Benefit

Dear Editor,

We welcome the statement by the Minister of Finance that in recognition of the improved fiscal position of the Government of Canada, the proposed Seniors Benefit legislation will not proceed.

We had recognized that the severe fiscal restraints on the government in 1995 and 1996 made the consideration of reducing government expenditures through cuts to a variety of programs, including Old Age Security, virtually inescapable. However, it was our position that there were serious flaws in the Seniors Benefit proposal that needed to be fixed, that implementation should be delayed beyond the proposed start date of 2001 and that the proposal should only be implemented if the government could assure Canadians that such drastic measures were necessary.

We congratulate the Minister of Finance for listening to and understanding the concerns of the Coalition of Seniors for Social Equity and other seniors groups and for having the courage to recognize that the proposal is now not necessary, and for acting accordingly.

At the same time, we are concerned with the position of lower income Canadian senior who would have seen their incomes increased in 2001. We hope that the need to increase benefits for the less fortunate seniors and the commitment to full indexing of all benefits will not be forgotten. We are also concerned that future measures to reduce the costs of benefits in future budgets making meaningful consultations almost impossible.

Sincerely,
Claude Edwards, Chair of the Coalition of Seniors for Social Equity

Back to school

Monday morning was the first day of school for all the kids in Chinook's Edge School Division including those at Ross Ford Elementary, Westglen, and Didsbury High School.

Enrolment at Chinook's Edge schools continues to grow, and the board is examining how to best handle that growth, including some upgrading that was done to Didsbury schools over the summer.

Museum Musings

By Marg Weaver

What a great success our Turn up the Heat barbecue was. I'm sure that everyone who was there enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The 5-0 Singers were delightful as usual. What a booster for Didsbury, they are. The Garage Sale and Bake Sale were great, and we appreciate everyone's help. Wasn't that cake something, though?

The raffle for the quilt was held at the rodeo. Congratulations to Mary Ann Jacobsen who won the quilt, and to Agnes Dumontier and Millie Lennox for winning the Image Books. The Family Museum Memberships were won by Adolph Wolkoski and Bill Parker. We hope you all enjoy your winnings and, once again, it was a great day for the Museum.

Hopefully everyone has had a great summer. It was a hot one anyway, wasn't it?

The gardens around town look beautiful as usual. In particular, did you notice the garden at the Museum, which looks great and is a credit to Evelyn.

Your scribe is going out of town for a couple of weeks, so I'll see you in the fall.

A reminder - The next meeting at the Museum will be held on Sept. 9, not on the Sept. 16 as previously planned. It has been put forward a week.

Anyone who is interested in joining us for our new year is invited to attend. We have some vacant spots on the board to fill.

The Museum will be open on Sept. 12 from 1-5 p.m. to accommodate the school reunion.

At The Kitchen Table

by
Noreen Olson

At Christmas in 1992, when my second cousin Anders Karl Botn wrote from Norway, he told us that his niece Gjertrud Maurstad had qualified for The World College Program and had hoped to come to Lester B. Pearson College in BC but more kids had qualified than there were available positions and Gjertrud missed the final cut. She was now in the International Baccalaureate Program in Trondheim but if she had a year of English in Canada it would have made her future studies a lot easier.

Ralph and I knew right away what we wanted to do. First, however, we had to find out if it was possible and of course if Gjertrud was interested. We talked to the School Superintendent, our County Councillor, Cremona School Principal, Cremona School teachers, our local Sons of Norway Lodge and family members. Everyone was supportive and encouraging. Then we wrote to Gjertrud and her parents. Gjertrud's first reaction was to burst into tears, but when she calmed down a bit she was pleased to accept our offer. She arrived in early August of 1993 and we immediately whisked her off to a week at Trollhaugen Culture Camp where she taught Norwegian song dance.

In September she began taking the bus to Cremona High School where she had enrolled in the Grade 12 Academic Program. She took English, Social Studies, Math, Biology, Chem and Physics. Her final marks ranged from 82 to 94. She returned to Norway in July of '94 just a couple of weeks short of a year spent in Canada. We were all sorry to have the year end and we felt that everyone had benefited from the experience.

Meanwhile Tomomi Kakeya from Japan and Karla Gonzales from Mexico were also going to school in Cremona under the Foreign Student Exchange Program. The girls became good friends, and participated in all school activities including the Graduation Exercises. Gjertrud, on the strength of her academic achievement, was granted early acceptance by the University of Calgary, but decided to go home to Norway and finish the IB program. She is now in university in Trondheim and has one and a half years to go on her degree in Civil Engineering. Tomomi and Karla went home as well. Tomomi is at the U of Kyoto studying International Relationships. Karla is at the U of Chihuahua in Business Management.

Gjertrud works summers as a guide at Alstahaug which is in Northern Norway and is the Church of Petter Dass. She guides tour camps in German, English and Norwegian. She has been saving her money and this year she flew first to Karla's home in Chihuahua, Mexico and then "home" to us. Tomomi flew to Chihuahua as well and then to her host family in Cremona. The three of them had a wonderful time together in Mexico and we are delighted to have Gjertrud with us. We only wish it were for longer than two weeks.

The Foreign Student Exchange Program may be one of the brightest lights in a dark world of war, hatred and misunderstanding. In the last few days it has become painfully obvious that the World Economic System is tied together in one great intricate mess wherein one country's monetary resources can make or break another's. All around us we have horrible evidence of the carnage that is bred by hatred and suspicion and intolerance. Wouldn't it be wonderful if the next generation could come to know each other as friends even if their backgrounds were as diverse as say, a Japanese, a Norwegian and a Mexican? I realize that three, nicely brought up, civilized young women going to school in Cremona do not exactly constitute a World Peace Talk initiative and none of us can claim hero status for our part in their experience, but it's a start and it proves a point. If we had access to some Serb, Croat or Palestinian kids could we make a difference? I think I might be willing to begin with a nice little Irish Catholic.

Last week we had the August birthday party. Don Bennett and his "singers" came and sang for us and several auxiliary members served ice cream and cake afterwards. Those celebrating August birthdays are Ethel Carroll, Margaret Hoskins and Olive Rice. Best wishes all.

One afternoon a few of us went up to the RCMP Dog Training Centre near Innisfail. They put on an excellent demonstration for us. It was a most enjoyable afternoon.

In hospital we have Ruth Martin and Pearl Stevenson. We hope to see you "home" soon.

On the path at Pasu

The Canadian Classic Sheep Dog Trials were held at Pasu Sheep Farm last weekend. Hundreds turned out for the event over the course of the three days to watch the dogs and their handlers round up and drive a group of sheep through and around a number of obstacles. Then the handler must direct the dog to split out specified sheep and pen them into a pen on the field. Also part of the weekend, was the Jack Russel Terrier championships, where the little dogs showed off their hunting instinct. While the event was going on, people in the crowd were free to wander Pasu and check out some of the attractions including the animals, pictured above.

Badger spottings

Have you seen a furry creature in your yard lately? If you thought it may have been a neighbour with their shirt off, you were wrong.

What you may have seen was a badger.

There have been many people in Didsbury who have seen a badger wandering through their yards lately.

It even wandered into Don Stevenson's garage last week.

Richard Lyons, the Fish and Wildlife Officer from Olds, says that he received two complaints last week about the creature. One was from Stevenson and the other was from a lady who had seen a badger running through her yard.

Lyons advised Stevenson to open his garage door at night to let the badger out. The animal left in the middle of the night, and hasn't been heard from since.

Lyons says that it's common for badgers to be around, but not in town.

"Sometimes they get lost and make a mistake and then come into town," Lyons said. "It had just made a mistake by coming into the town."

Lyons is quite sure that the badger has left Didsbury and returned to the wild, but if it does return, he has some tips for dealing with the animal.

"Badgers are a wild animal, and a tough animal. They could injure a dog," he said.

He said that badgers will not attack unless they are provoked. If they feel threatened, he said they will defend themselves.

He advises people to keep their children and pets indoors, if they think they have a badger in their yard. He asks that children don't tease the animal, because there is a possibility it may attack.

"If you see a badger, or any other sort of wildlife, just call and let us know. Don't try and get close and discourage pets from approaching, and there won't be any trouble," Lyons said.

If you do see this badger again, or any other wild animals, you can call Lyons at 556-4215.

Bev Cheesmur

We welcome you ...

Who would best know about all the new people that have moved to Didsbury lately?

Well, that would be Bev Cheesmur, our Welcome Wagon lady.

Cheesmur has been involved with the Welcome Wagon since the fall of 1994, and she says that she has visited 372 families since then.

This year alone, there have been 61 new families that have moved here, compared to 99 for the whole year in 1997.

Cheesmur says that she has met some very interesting people during her Welcome Wagon visits.

"Last year was very exciting. We had people come from the US, Scotland, South and West Africa, Lebanon, the NWT and six other provinces," she said.

Cheesmur says that a couple of the most interesting people that she has met so far are Ibrahim and Mustafa Sabbah, two men who moved here from West Bank. They are currently running the bottle depot.

Another interesting couple are Darren and Cindy Howie, who moved here from Crossfield, who spent some time backpacking across the Middle East.

Cheesmur says she averages greeting about eight people a month.

If you are interested in having Cheesmur visit you, or you know of someone new in town, you can call her at 335-3991.

Record setter

Have you picked up a 1998 edition of The Guinness Book of World Records lately?

Well, if not, then you should. If you flip to page 576 in the Riding Records part of the Sports section, you will notice a local name.

Glen O'Neill is named in the book as sharing the top score of 95 points in the saddle bronc event.

He earned this score at the Innisfail rodeo in June of 1996, riding Skool's Airwolf.

The other rider that has placed 95 points in the event is Doug Vold in Meadow Lake, SK, in 1979. He was riding a horse named Transport.

O'Neill is a Water Valley cowboy who is currently riding in the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association (CPRA) circuit. He is currently in first place in the saddle bronc event, with a season earnings of $33,990 to date.

He has also broken the record for seasonal event earnings in the CPRA in the saddle bronc.

Other feats that O'Neill has accomplished include: winning the PRCA Rookie of the Year title in 1995; Winning the $50,000 Calgary Stampede in the saddle bronc event; being the Wrangler Circuit Series Saddle Bronc Champion in 1996; the Coors Chute Out Saddle Bronc Champion in 1996; and the Alberta Circuit Saddle Bronc Champion in 1996.

To become a record setter ...

If you, or anyone you know, is interested in attempting to break a Guinness record there are a few rules you need to follow:

- Choose to beat a record that is in the current edition of the book.
- Write to the following address, telling them exactly which record you want to break and request the guidelines for that record: The Guinness Book of World Records, Six Landmark Square, Stamford, CT, 06901-2704.
- Check with them again about 72 hours before you proceed with your attempt to make sure the record has not been broken since you received the guidelines.
- If you would like to attempt a new record category, you should submit a written proposal to the above address. You may wait four to six weeks to hear a reply.
- The criteria used to establish a record are as follows: the record must be measurable, must be independently corroborated, must be completely objective, and should preferably be the subject of worldwide interest and participation.
- Unique skills, one-of-a-kind occurrences and "firsts" do not qualify for entry into the book.

"All hands on deck" at Olds Koinonia school

By April C.D. Barton

Back-to-school clean-up crews have been busy at Olds Koinonia Christian School as students, parents and even grandparents have been lending a helping hand to complete various maintenance and construction projects. Countless hours of volunteer labour have been done throughout August in preparation for this week's re-opening of classes as OKCS stands ready to welcome students into its 17th year of operation. According to Principal Garry Anderson, it's family participation and cooperation such as this that exemplifies the Koinonia spirit.

"It's really what makes the school what it is - a parent-run school," Anderson said. "Without it, the school would cease to be."

About 253 students have registered at Olds Koinonia for the 1998-99 school year - a figure which shows obvious growth and popularity since the school's inception in 1982 and its original 25 student roll-call. Located about five miles southeast of Olds on 13 acres of land, OKCS is an independent accredited school offering classes from Kindergarten through Grade 12. Its mission is to assist the Christian family in training their children to be academically strong and spiritually sound. A bus service from many outlying communities is also available at OKCS and is used by almost 60% of its students.

With about 15 full-time teachers onboard, Koinonia welcomes a new name to the staff list this year with the addition of Miss Erin Wiebe. She will be replacing Joanne Effa who is pursuing a mission opportunity teaching in Mongolia for the year.

As the new Grade 10 homeroom teacher, Wiebe will be responsible for Grades 8, 10, 11 and 12 English and Drama. Originally from Manitoba, she has six years teaching experience on the prairies, followed by last year's adventurous term in South Korea teaching English for the Sogang University Language Program.

"It was very different - very interesting," Wiebe said. "Over there, they are very family-oriented ... everything is based on the family."

In South Korea, she relates, the children go to school from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and then go off to a "hogwan" from 3-9 p.m. It was during these hogwans that Wiebe would instruct conversational English to students aged six years to adulthood.

"Often students from high school would study until midnight," she said, "and then do it all again the next night."

An accomplished pianist, Wiebe also brings with her experience and enthusiasm from being a volunteer with the Alberta High School for Fine Arts Musical Program based out of Okotoks. Upcoming OKCS dramas directed by Wiebe will be announced here closer to their performance dates.

Competition dates regarding the Olds Koinonia Royals Volleyball Teams will also be announced here as they become available. Team tryouts for the junior high and senior high teams will be held within the first few weeks of school, said Dwayne Brown, OKCS athletic director, with tournaments expected to begin within the county by mid-month. Olds Koinonia will also be hosting this year's regional and zone competitions for 1A schools. Those dates respectively will be Nov. 14 and 21, held at Olds College. Be sure to put these dates on your calendars now. The Royals are sure to provide fast-action competition, having been Zone Champions for the past five years, and fourth in the province last year.

While being on the Royals athletic teams will be a challenge to the physical stamina

THE EYE OF THE TIGER

New OKCS teacher, Erin Wiebe brought back this picture of herself taken in South Korea during her time there.

of OKCS' young men and women, it is the words behind the school's 'Theme of the Year' that best describes how the class teachers hope to motivate their students morally, academically and spiritually in their day-to-day lives: "... be transformed by the renewing of your mind. Then you will be able to test and approve what God's will is - his good, pleasing and perfect will." (Romans 12:2)

HOME SWEET HOME

Vance van Dam officially hands the key of the Didsbury Lion's Playhouse to Bettina Kershaw. Kershaw won the house during the fair weekend, and it is currently waiting for a permanent home on her parents farm northwest of town. Kershaw, who is Grade 10 at DHS, has considered a number of uses for the playhouse, everything from turning it into a small ice cream shop to using it for doing her homework in peace. This was the fourth playhouse raffle, and this one netted about $1500 in profits (after costs), that will be put towards the operation of the Lion's Handi-Bus.

ROAD RIPPERS

Benefiting from provincial transportation grants handed out earlier this year, the Town of Didsbury crews have been repairing and revamping roads all across town. The temporary inconveniences, will soon be replaced by some long term better driving conditions for residents.

UGG sod turning in Olds

Olds Mayor Alan W. Taylor and William (Bill) McGill, Managing Director of UGG Livestock Services Division, ceremonially turned the sod to mark the official start of construction for the new UGG plant in Olds.

The $12 million feed manufacturing plant will replace an older facility and will triple the capacity of the previous plant. The plant is expected to service an area from Central Alberta to east Kootaney, British Columbia.

"We are excited about UGG's decision and the commitment they have made to our Community," said Taylor.

"UGG is a natural fit with the Town of Olds marketing strategy of attracting agricultural based/value added firms," said Taylor. "It also is an outstanding example of existing business growing and expanding with our community."

Olds provides an ideal location for UGG to service its intended market area.

"This plant and the recent addition of Westeel to the towns growing agricultural/industrial base certainly goes a long way to securing a healthy and vibrant future for Olds and area," said Taylor.

CWB fast-tracks cash advance programs for wheat and barley

Cash advances for CWB grains will be available to farmers beginning Sept. 2 - two weeks earlier than originally scheduled.

The program is normally scheduled to start mid-September but, given the early harvest, the CWB and Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada fast-tracked the process. Application forms will be in country elevators for the start of the program.

The CWB administers the cash advance program (the Agricultural Marketing Programs Act) on behalf of the federal government. Cash advances provide farmers with cash flows by advancing money on farm-stored grain and give farmers the flexibility to meet their expenses after harvest and before crops are sold. Cash advances are repaid by farmers from later grain deliveries.

The CWB is one of the world's largest wheat and barley exporters, with annual sales revenues approaching $6 billion. The CWB markets Prairie-grown wheat and barley to over 70 countries around the world. As the farmers' single-desk marketing agency, the CWB returns all sales revenues, less the costs of marketing, to wheat and barley farmers in Western Canada.

Wild Rose agricultural producers launch new web-site

Wild Rose Agricultural Producers officially unveiled its new web-site location this week. The web-site located at www.wrap.ab.ca provides both members and the general public with a wide array of information both on the organization and on agriculture in general.

President Alan Holt said "The new web-site exemplifies the growth of Wild Rose and will provide the agricultural community another valuable source of information. I especially want to commend the Government of Alberta, and particularly the Department of Agriculture, Food and Rural Development for its cooperation in helping set up the site on the Agricultural Input Monitoring System (AIMS) for which members of Wild Rose provide regional information. AIMS provides pricing information across the province, and with the Federal Government's recent decisions to get out of the agricultural statistics business, we believe it can become an invaluable tool for farmers and ranchers."

Holt went on to say that "the agricultural community is becoming increasingly dependant on quick, reliable information the Internet certainly is one avenue where that information is readily available."

Wild Rose Agricultural Producers are already planning to expand the site to add the capabilities of member and non-member discussion rooms where input on numerous agricultural issues can be compiled.

"It is imperative that, as Alberta's largest producer funded general farm organization we continue to receive input on all agricultural issues from as many members and non-members alike," said Holt.

He went on to say that "the more information and feedback we receive, the better equipped we are in putting forward effective and realistic proposals. I hope every producer in Alberta who has access to the Internet will take the time to look through the web-site and provide their comments and suggestions for improvement."

Olds families excel at Westerner Days

Red Deer's Westerner Days was a record breaking success in all areas.

A total of 80,950 people visited Westerner Park July 15-19 thanks to great weather, a bigger and better midway and expanded livestock shows. Westerner Days beef cattle program saw the highest number of entries in years with close to 1,000 livestock recorded.

Many local cattle producers exhibited their livestock during the Westerner Days Fair and Exposition in Red Deer. With high calibre competition in both the Junior and Open show's, Central Alberta breeders took home honors in many divisions. Following are your 1998 Westerner Days Champions.

Crop report for August 25

The 1998 harvest continues to race along. While most of the province saw favourable harvest weather this past week, a few areas received heavy thunder showers which slowed harvest progress and lowered crop quality.

Almost one half of this year's crop has been harvested, well above the ten-year average of 7%.

| Crop                        | % of Crop Combined(as of August 25, 1998) | % of Crop Combined(Ten-year average) |
|-----------------------------|---|--|
| Hard Red Spring Wheat       | 44  | 5  |
| Canada Prairie Spring Wheat | 33  | 3  |
| Soft White Spring Wheat     | 74  | 9  |
| Winter Wheat                | 93  | 55                                       |
| Durum Wheat                 | 62  | 11                                       |
| Oats                        | 35  | 3  |
| Barley                      | 56  | 8  |
| Flax                        | 14  | 1  |
| Fall Rye                    | 82  | 47                                       |
| Canola                      | 48  | 5  |
| All crops                   | 49  | 7  |

The top four crop districts in terms of percent of crop combined are 1 (Medicine Hat-Foremost) at 84%, 2 (Brooks-Lethbridge) at 78%, 15B (South Peace) at 77%, and 15A (North Peace) at 69%. Most areas require another two weeks of warm, dry conditions to complete the harvest.

Crop quality estimates changed very little from last week. Last week's estimates are in brackets for comparison purposes. Alberta Pool reporting staff estimate 77 (76)% of the Hard Red Spring Wheat will grade 1 CWRS, 18 (18)% 2CWRS, 4 (6)% 3CWRS, and 1 (0)% CW Feed. Barley is estimated at 16 (18)% malt, 64 (66)% 1CW, and 20 (16)% 2CW. The rating for canola is 86 (82)% 1 Canada, 12 (15)% 2 Canada, and 2 (2)% 3 Canada.

Generally, the crops already harvested have been of high quality due to the ideal harvest conditions experienced over the last two weeks. The effects of the previous dry conditions in eastern and northeastern Alberta are now showing up as reduced yields in those areas.

Take care of your eyes. You'd be lost without them.

The loss of sight can happen to anyone without warning. That's why early detection through a yearly visit to an Optometrist is important. A Doctor of Optometry will perform a painless, but thorough eye health examination that can help detect underlying eye disease. The visit is affordable and is often covered by insurance. Visit an Optometrist every year even if you think your vision hasn't changed. You don't need a referral, simply look under Optometrist in the Yellow Pages. # Maximum trade show attendance

ALBERTA AGRICULTURE, FOOD AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT
Regional Advisory Services

By Joyce Lencucha, Agri Food Development Specialist

A number of significant agriculture and food industry trade shows occur in the fall and winter. Trade shows can be important and valuable for those who participate, but participate is a key word. To maximize the time and money you invest in attending a trade show you need to plan a course of action.

1. Consider your objectives for participating and define the cost/benefit and impact on your business. Objectives might include: create an impression; maintain an image; establish sales leads; increase sales; introduce new products or introduce old products to a new audience.

Exhibiting at a trade show can cost thousands of dollars: show fees, design and construction of a booth, cost of samples, supplies and equipment, freight, staff, travel, accommodation and meals. Trade shows can be cost effective and a good use of your time. At a trade show potential buyers come to you and may save you many days identifying and visiting potential companies. Trade shows allow you to hear from targeted customers.

2. Choose the Correct Trade Show: Before you make a commitment evaluate the trade show to make sure the audience is representative of your potential buyers. Find out who attends the show as well as who exhibits. If the show has some history, organizers can often provide a profile of attendees and some indicators of sales. Admission to many industry trade shows is restricted to industry personnel. Are the attendees from the types of companies to which you would like to sell? Do the representatives attending have purchasing power or influence?

Attend the show as an observer. Evaluate the pre show publicity. Consider how well the show is organized. Walk the entire show area to get an idea of heavy traffic areas. Check out the products, services and prices that you will compete with as well as the style and sophistication of your competitors' sales and promotion methods. Talk to a few exhibitors who sell non-competitive products. Ask how many people stop at the booth and if sales can be traced to the show? Would they attend again?

3. Prepare and train for the show. Information on this aspect of working a trade show is available from many sources and can be valuable for first time exhibitors. Check local libraries for books on exhibiting. Advertise to current customers that you will be at the show. Public relations, product knowledge, salesmanship, and show discounts are key items to consider at this stage.

4. Follow up can mean the difference between an interested contact and a sale. Contact visitors in person, by mail or telephone within 10 days of the show.

5. Keep records and evaluate the show. For each show attended record show attendance, profile of booth visitors, number of qualified leads, cost per lead, sales and so on. Records will enable you to evaluate attendance at future shows and assess which shows are providing the most benefit to your company.

And concrete is safe. Quality controlled, concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

Concrete is an energy-wise choice. A concrete basement needs little heat or air conditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Record breaking year for local cowboy, Glen O'Neill

Seasonal event earnings records have already been set in the bronc riding and steer wrestling. Glen O'Neill, who caught fourth in the Oliver bronc riding, has won almost $34,000, well above the record $29,317 established by Rod Hay last year. Prior to that, the record was set by Mel Coleman in 1984. And steer wrestler Lee Graves, who split second at Oliver, has collected more than $27,700 this year, well above the old mark of $24,854 set by Lee Laskosky in 1993.

There was only one rodeo last weekend, but it meant another mention in the recordbook for two-time Canadian ladies barrel racing champ Debbie Guelly. Thanks to a second place finish at the Oliver Kinsmen Rodeo in the south Okanagan rodeo, Guelly picked up $470 to increase her earnings for the year to $27,321, a regular season record.

She eclipsed the old high of $27,315 set by Leslie Schlosser last year. Schlosser took the record away from Guelly, who established the previous high of $27,207 in 1995.

Guelly has also been quietly moving up in the world chart and snuck inside the top 15 for the first time this year the week previous to Oliver. She's now earned in excess of $30,000 going into the Labor Day weekend. It took just over $32,000 to make the 15-contestant cut for the National Finals last year, but that's sure to rise significantly this time around. Guelly already has one NFR appearance (1995) to her credit.

Winning the barrel racing at Oliver was hometown girl, Leasa Conley, a permit holder, with her first pro victory. In other barrel racing news, Joan Hager, a CFR qualifier for the last five years, fractured a bone on the outside of her left knee, when her eight-year-old sorrel slipped and fell rounding a barrel at Jasper. Despite the injury, the feisty 5'4" cowgirl is hoping to compete at the Labour Day rodeos in Armstrong, Okotoks and Merritt, making a final effort to make her sixth Canadian Finals. She sits in 12th spot now, just $1,276 out of an appearance in Edmonton this fall.

"They say absolutely no weight-bearing for six weeks," she said, "but ... you know ... in our business. They told me when I left the hospital I'd be crazy if I tried to ride any sooner."

"If I had to ride today, I couldn't do it," Hager said, "but I've got 12 days left before I have to decide."

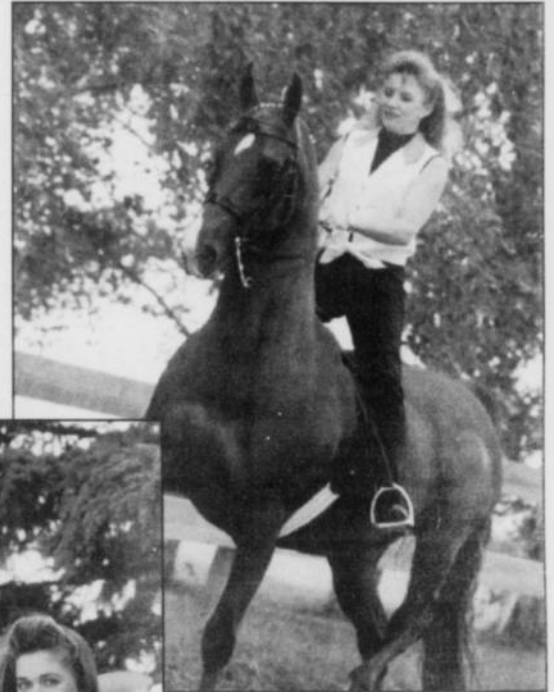

Also at Oliver, Rod Warren and novice Ben Louis split the bronc with 80s on Harvey Northcott's old campaigner Houdini. For Warren, this is just more ammunition for his desire to finish among the top five in the world. As he explains it, the lead five are the last to go each night at the National Finals.

Bill Boyd captured the bareback riding with an 85 in Bonus Round. And, a third place cheque for $461 by brother Albert boosted him back into the top 10 in Canada.

Robbie Bell and Derek Adams split the bull riding with 81s for $1,039. Bell, the rookie from Houston, BC, jumped from eighth to fifth in the standings.

Canadian champion Joe Lucas posted a run of 8.1 seconds in the roping for $1,058, which carried his season earnings to $13,600 and change and likely clinched his 17th CFR appearance.

BEST OF THE BREEDS
Derby, Mercedes and many other fine horses will be soon at the Fall Classic to be held Saturday, Sept. 5 and Sunday, Sept. 6 (Labour Day weekend) at the Didsbury Memorial Complex.

A TRIBUTE TO SHELTON

By Frank Pavlick

We welcome Sheldon Kennedy from heartbreak to success.

How difficult his world has been, our world can only guess.

But there is one fact Sheldon brought to every heart and home,

That bullies of young children must not be allowed to roam.

We welcome Sheldon's courage, his commitment to the fact, Abusing ANY children is a truly evil act.

Here is a World Class Champion and THE leader in the field, Of stand and fight ALL child abuse, forever, never yield.

A one man rolling in-line journey of 8,000 K's,

Spreading the truth that standing up to evil clearly pays.

You, Sheldon Kennedy, have taught a lesson to us all,

We celebrate your fighting heart, and THANKS for standing tall.

Godzilla's back on the screen

By Wendy Bauer

Do you remember watching those great Godzilla movies on television when you were a kid? Well now you can get thrilled again, but this time the monster is a lot scarier.

Godzilla is poised to be released on video in November and if you caught it in the theatre you can relive it all again while tucked safely into your favorite chair. I must admit I am a snob when it comes to huge special effects movies. I make sure I don't miss them when they are on the big screen, because I feel they don't have the same effect on my puny little screen at home. But with that said, if you have not seen Godzilla yet, get ready to have a great time.

Godzilla was put together by the same team that brought us Independence Day. It is not as good an effort, but it is a really entertaining one.

The movie stars Matthew Broderick as a nerdy scientist who we find studying the effects of the Chernobyl accident on earthworms. Being the leading expert on the effects of radiation on lower life forms, he is drafted into service by the US Government when they find huge reptilian footprints throughout the Panamanian landscape.

The footprints lead Broderick to New York City where Godzilla is playing a game of cat and mouse with the US Armed Forces through the streets of the city. Hank Azaria, who you remember as the 'maid' in The Birdcage, is a TV cameraman who will do anything to get a picture of this elusive monster. I think he steals the show in the human category.

Even renegade TV cameraman Animal (Hank Azaria) can't hide his shock and horror when he comes toe-to-toe with Godzilla.

It's a tall order to upstage Godzilla (if you'll pardon the pun).

Running through the film are two slightly unnecessary subplots. One involved Broderick and his obligatory, if not a bit ditsy, love interest played by Maria Pitillo. The second is some conspiracy involving the French government. I think the creators of this movie could have left these plot twists on the cutting room floor. I feel that they interfere with the rest of the story. After all, don't we really go to these types of movies to watch the monster destroy entire buildings with the swish of his tail and reek havoc on a major city. I know I do.
